SCOTTSDALE, ARIZONA – August 15, 2008 – Computer Guidance Corporation, the leading developer of financial and project management software solutions for the commercial construction industry, announced that Tli Cho Logistics Ltd. has joined the growing list of contractors making the move to the eCMS accounting solution to manage its rapidly growing business.

Based in Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, Canada, Tli Cho Logistics is an Aboriginal Partnership that provides services and support to companies that transport across the winter ice roads of Canada's North. Core services include freight management, tractor service, hot shot / pilot car, contract hauling, rock quarry services and air expediting arrangements.

The eCMS 3.6 web interface applications from Computer Guidance Corporation provide Tli Cho with solutions that will make the company more efficient, including fully automated capabilities for payroll and billing systems that eliminate the need for manual input of data. The eCMS 3.6 suite combines 30 unified applications with enhanced features such as eForms, which allows Tli Cho to simply edit forms in Microsoft Word™. The company will also take advantage of integrated productivity tools such as document imaging, electronic workflow, and decisions support and electronic forms management, all from the convenience of a web browser.

"Previously running on QuickBooks™, Tli Cho was looking for a system that could better support its dynamic growth by integrating its business processes and eliminating redundant data entry," noted Ron Kaplan, Business Development Manager at Computer Guidance. "The eCMS applications will enable the company to automate its entire billing operation and will eliminate the need for an outside payroll processing service. The new system will lower Tli Cho's administrative costs while enabling the company to monitor job status and finances on a real time basis."
